THE KHARS-FOURTH NIGHT-"THE STRANG-ER" AND "THE WORDER."-The performance Saturday night closed the engagement with the Kosassas well as the dramatic season. The fame of the artists, together with the knowledge that that was their last appearance, drew a large crowd to the Academy, despite the rain, and of course all were paid for their pains. We regretted the selection of the first play, "The Stranger." It is without any especial merit. The plot is easily conceived; the characters are fifth-rate, and whatever sentiments the piece may contain are chespand commonplace. There is in it neither subtlety, wisdom nor wit; and for a excellent actors, we could have wished they had appeared in characters whose dignity and worth were equal to their power and fame as artists.

But as a great mind sheds on the meanet, most trivial objects a light so powerful that they seem to acquire beauty in their newly-discovered relations, the Kenns availed by their fine acting to raise the above commonplace play to the rank of s beautiful piece of art.

The story, in succ, is this: The wife of the "Stranger" is seduced by a villain, and leserts her home. She instantly quits her evil ways, but does not return to the husband and children she has disgraced. After years they accidentally meet, -he a recluse, she a heart-isricken, penitent woman; a final interview is asked by her and, with reluctance, granted by him who still loves her unutterably. It takes place; and in that scene the Keans showed themselves transcendantly great. We leave the interview to the imagination of the reader, ly perfect rendition.

To this end they have secured the services of many of the ablest writers on theology, art, finance and politics, whose communications will appear, from week to week, in this journal. We have every reason to believe that the critical campaign will be fought through, and to victorious, beneficent results to our country and national literature, by the Round Table, with all the bravery, vigor and spirit of the manifesto of its conductors. A journal started with such worthy, high, but not impracticable aims, descree occess, and we have no doubt that, with the means already at its command, it will win the same from the very first. The subscription price, payable in advance, is six dollars a year. Five copies to one address, $25; ten copies, $45. All communications should be addressed to "The Round Table," 132 Nassau street, New

A GLASS TOO MUCH.-Those who are famil ar with the Weddell House, and all first class travelers are, by the way, may remember the large mirror at the end of the hall leading from the clerk's office. A few nights ago a gentleman stopping at the the hall in search of his room. Reaching the mirror at the end of the hall, he caught sight of his reflection in the glass and missking it for an attache of the hotel, ad ireased it as follows:

"Will you show my (hie) room Pplease? A pause and no reply. He spoke again n a louder and severer tone :

"Can you tell me where for seven is ?" Receiving no answer to his second interogation he turned indignantly on his hee and sought clerk Bingham and said : "Whose thatfeller in the (hic) hall? Mor pertinent feller ever saw. Can't answer civil question. Aint he (hie) drunk?" Bingham admitted the possibility and saw that the weary traveler was sent to his rest at "for'seven." That mirror was "a glass too much" for the stranger. Two BOLDIERS HAVE A FIGHT,-A brick fight was indulged in last evening in front of the American House, by two soldiers who were under the influence of liquor. One laimed to be the bully of his battery, the other of his regiment, and quite logically, considering they were in drick, they drifted into the consideration of the comparative pugilistic abilities of each other, and not being able to settle the question of su-periarity, peaceably, appealed to the arbirament of literal "arms," that is, fists and They fought with fury about fifteen min utes, knocking, clenching, kicking, clawing, wrestling, chowing and swearing. Several hundred people gathered around the sons of Mars, but as no policemen were on the ground, they were allowed to fight it out on that line-not all summer-but until they mutually quit, when they draw off to repair damages and wash off dirt and blood. They looked like a brace of dreadfully demoralized game-cocks on the conclusion o the fight. Hall—the best place for a soldier to get his HIGHWAY ROBBERY-Last Thursday night, week ago, a man named Flesher, living in Pennsylvania, but doing business in Chicago, left this city for the latter place, intending to change cars at Crestline, but he set out to walk back, in company with two men who said they had made the same mistake. When about half way to Cresline, Flesher was knocked down by one of them, and robbed of a goldwatch and chain

On Saturday night a man named Warren was arrested in Mansfield, who had on his person the watch in question. He was lodged in the Bucyrus jail. On the following Monday one Samuel Barker was arrested in Massillon, with the chain in his ossession. He, too, was taken to Bucyrus, and on the way he made a full confession Warren knocked Mr. Flesher down and did the seraching, and he (Barker) received only the chain aforesaid. Barker has always had a good reputation, but he stands a good chance now of going, with his comrade, to the ponitentiary.

The 38th was organized at Defiance, in September, 1861, under the Coloneley of Edward Bradley, having been recruited in the Northwestern counties of the State. It went out with nearly one thousand men, and returns with about six hundred and thirty. It has seen hard service, and has leat heavily, frightfully in officers and men. Colonel Bradley was soon disabled. His two successors were killed in battle, and the present commander, Lieutenant Colonel Irving, lost a leg in the battles around Atlanta.
